

07 May 2020

Good morning, I hope you are all well and keeping safe.

Today is 75 years since Europe declared the end of WW2, and so tomorrow is a bank holiday for families to mark the occasion together. Please visit the class blogs for fun ideas to help the children learn about this important part of history. Please send in your photographs from the day and we will share them on the class blogs. I am planning a lunchtime family picnic in the garden wearing red, white and blue clothes! I look forward to seeing your commemorative photographs.

This weekend the government are due to announce their exit strategy plans. The school will continue to work with you to support your individual needs during this time. I will update you with any changes as they occur. In the meantime, please keep in contact via the school office and we will help in any way that we can.

Thank you for continuing to support the children and sending your photographs in. I can see you are all working so incredibly hard and all your efforts are greatly appreciated. Well done.

Wishing you a wonderful bank holiday weekend.

Keep safe

Dear God,

Be with us Lord as we remember those who suffered during conflicts and those who are suffering today. Help us to appreciate what we have and what they have lost. May we always be grateful and kind in our words and our actions. Thank you for watching over us on this day.

Amen
